

Abortion crowds don't show, 22 arrested

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — There were a few tense moments Saturday during the anti-abortion protest at the Hope Clinic for Women, but the demonstration was anti-climactic in most respects as barely 200 demonstrators showed up and only 22 were arrested.

Protesters numbered barely 30 by 9:15 a.m., about an hour after the arrests were made. By that time, the police outnumbered the protesters, as officers from Madison, Venice, the Madison County Sheriff's Department and the Illinois State Police assisted Granite City police.

There were also about 20 reporters, photographers and TV cameramen present.

Protesters began showing up around 6:40 a.m. By 7:30 there were about 20 protesters marching up and down Iowa and 21st Streets. Granite City policemen began reading "flex cuffs," plastic handcuffs resembling slotted trash bag ties. But by 8 a.m. there were about 200 protesters, who sang songs and carried placards.

Two women drove onto the parking lot. As they got out of their car, a woman protester yelled, "Mama, don't kill your baby." The two women walked without incident through the open rear door of the clinic, escorted by some of the 20 volunteer escorts at the clinic.

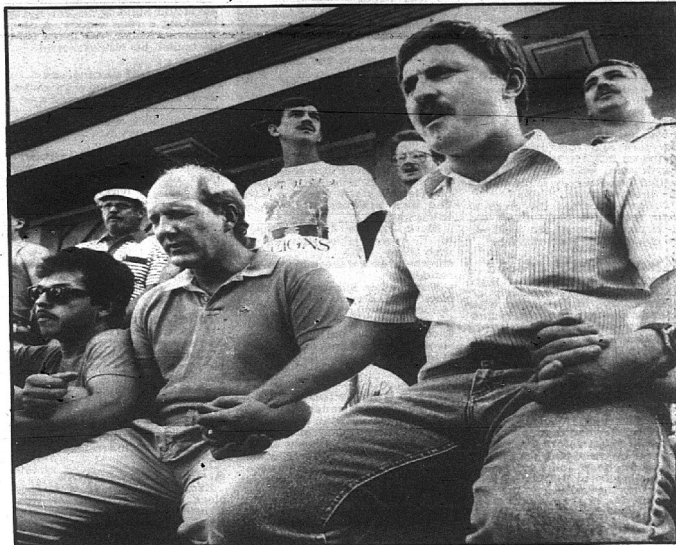

The escorts, who wore green vests identifying them as escorts, included women in their 20s, 30s and 50s, several men in their 20s and 30s and one man in his 60s.

On the other side of a wood fence separating the parking lot from an alley, a protester in the alley held a poster sign. It read:

"When they tell you that abortion is a matter just between a woman and her doctor, they're forgetting someone." Pictured was a fetus.

On the Iowa Street sidewalk, a young girl carried a stenciled sign: "Abortion: A woman's right to kill!"

Local police met their goals

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Local police accomplished their goals without incident during Saturday's protest march at Hope Clinic for Women.

Keeping 21st Street open to allow between 200 and 250 children and their parents unhindered access to the monthly inoculation clinic at St. Elizabeth Medical Center was stressed as a major priority at an early morning briefing for more than 30 police officers at Granite City police headquarters.

Lt. Col. Ron Selph, assistant police chief, and Capt. Kip Pomeroy briefed officers from Madison, the Illinois State Police, Granite City and the Granite City Auxiliary Police unit.

"These people (protesters) indicated yesterday that they are going to be cooperative. We'll see," Pomeroy said.

"We don't want to incite them and we don't need or want an explosive, volatile situation."

Making sure families were not impeded from entering the free inoculation clinic also was a key priority of Madison County State's Attorney Bill Haine.

"After Capt. Pomeroy told me yesterday about the inoculation clinic, I prepared a temporary restraining order, which was signed by a judge, in case that entrance was blocked," Haine said Saturday.

"I also called the pastor of New Covenant Church in Edwardsville (whose group was to assemble at Hope Clinic) and told him we believe that blocking this entrance would go beyond the pale and we would sweep everyone away en masse."

"The pastor told me he would take every pain to keep his people from blocking the doors at the hospital and I guess he did."

BRUSH CHOKED vacant lot at 1026 Douglas St. Is one of several properties in Venice owned by Charles McCaskill, Venice school superintendent.

School superintendent owns derelict properties

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

VENICE — The City Council plans to ask Venice School District 3 Superintendent Charles McCaskill why properties he owns are in dilapidated condition.

He is the landlord/owner of several derelict properties in the 1000 block of Calhoun Street in North Venice.

McCaskill resides in Edwardsville. Broken windows and doors are not boarded up, allowing children to enter them and play among the rubble, and weeds have grown up to three feet high, neighbors say.

The properties are a vacant house and garage at 1010 Calhoun, a weedy vacant lot at 1025 and 1031-33 Calhoun and a vacant house at 1019 Calhoun.

McCaskill also owns a vacant lot at 1026 Douglas St., where scrub trees grow 15 feet tall, combining with six-foot weeds to make an impenetrable tangle.

Alderman Victor Valentine brought the matter up at the City Council meeting Tuesday, saying the condition of the properties poses a hazard to children. He said he had seen rats on them, too. "There's kids in and out," Valentine said. "Sooner or later, someone's going to start a fire there."

Alderman John Henry Williams said derelict properties pose a growing problem in Venice. He said the city needs to get tough on violators.

"No other city in the universe has been as nice as us," Williams said.

Mayor Tyrone Echols said he would ask McCaskill to appear at the next council meeting.

McCaskill said he and his brothers Earle and Randall had inherited the properties years ago.

"We've been trying to get rid of them for years," McCaskill said. But he said they had been unable to find any buyers.

He said somebody would be out to cut the weeds on Monday.

A derelict car sits behind the house at 1019 Calhoun. "That's been there at least 15 years," McCaskill said. "If somebody wants to buy it, they could get it out of there."

McCaskill said that every time he boards up his derelict houses, somebody breaks in.

"I don't know what the solution is," he said. Trash litters the back yard of 1010 Calhoun. Gertrude Young lives next door at 1008. Her house and yard are in exemplary shape.

"I don't why he (McCaskill) doesn't do something about it," Young said.

Calhoun Street has several other derelict sites.

Crime rate up slightly

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — From 1987 to 1988, reported crime rose 3 percent in Madison County and 3.3 percent statewide, according to statistics released recently by the Illinois State Police.

Reported crime rose 3.7 percent in Granite City and 18.5 percent in Madison, but it dropped 36 percent in Venice and fell 37.8 percent in Pontoon Beach.

Most of the increases in Granite City and Madison were in the category of property crimes such as theft and burglary.

In the more serious category of crimes against persons, there were either no significant increases or slight decreases.

For example, Granite City had one murder in 1988 and one murder in 1987, for a net change of zero percent. The city had eight criminal sexual assaults in 1988 compared to 10 in 1987, and 75 aggravated assaults in '88 compared to 69 in '87. It had 17 robberies in '88 and 15 in '87.

Madison had two murders in '88 compared to two in '87. Aggravated assaults dropped from 40 to 20. Criminal sexual assaults dropped from three to zero. There were 21 robberies each year.

Venice had no murders or sex assaults in either year and aggravated assaults dropped (See CRIME, Page 6A)

Madison brings back band program

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

MADISON — It was music to the ears of District 12 parents as school board members reversed their decision to cut the band program, reinstating it for this school year.

Linda Stoll, a music teacher honorably dismissed this spring, was hired as the district's band director during Thursday night's meeting.

John Hamm III, board president, made the motion to reinstate the program following a brief executive session that had been called shortly after the start of the meeting.

Only board member Bruce Trotts voted against the motion in a 4-1 tally. Members Ed Dohmal and Wilbur Owens were absent.

"We crunched the numbers down and it's going to be tight," Hamm said of the budget.

Band was among several programs on the chopping block for the 1989-90 year.

The retirement of former director William Ledbetter made it easier to end the program and would have saved the district a salary as well. Hamm said that, with Stoll hired, the district will still save $9,000 to $11,000.

Hamm said the $308,000 the district is to receive from the recent temporary state income tax increase had no bearing on the decision.

"We have been kicking the band program around from the word go," Hamm said. "It was the hardest one to make the cut on."

The district has been suffering financial woes and was placed on the Illinois State Board of Education's "financial watch list" in February.

"It's going to cost us, but it would have been a major cost to let the equipment set idle for a year and then try to start the program back up again," Hamm said.

Hamm said board members had been unaware that Stoll had credentials qualifying her for the director's position.

"She's a wonderful teacher and is well-liked by students," Hamm said.

Parents thanked the board for bringing back the band.

"They made a wonderful decision and a great choice (of directors)," Emma Bosworth, a parent, said.

Bosworth and Barbara Champion, president and treasurer of the Madison Parents Club, respectively, were among a handful of parents who have attended each of the last several school board meetings anxiously anticipating such a decision.

"This is really a surprise and it is wonderful," Champion said. "We didn't expect it to happen quite this soon."

Bosworth and Champion pledged the support of their organization, which frequently holds book fairs and candy sales in its fund-raising efforts.

Wilson Park officer hurt

A Wilson Park security officer was injured in an assault by a young man near the Big Band concert site in the park about 8:15 p.m. Wednesday.

Robert L. Chinn, 61, said he was having problems with three or four young men who were making loud noises and creating a disturbance near the band concert site. One man started flexing his muscles and agitating Chinn, who advised the group to leave the area.

At that point, one of the men pushed Chinn to the ground and, as he was trying to get to his feet, he was kicked and struck in the nose by the security officer said. The four then left the park, heading toward Benton Street.

Two police officers searched the area and located three suspects. Granite City residents, they gave their ages as 14, 15 and 20 years old.

The suspects were returned to the park and identified by the victim as those in the group. The fourth man, who allegedly committed the battery, was not among the three identified.

Officers escorted the three to their respective homes and told their parents about the incident. An investigation is continuing.

Russell alleged Angela Kay Epps, 21, of the 2500 block of Madison Avenue, Madison, with whom he'd had problems before, forced her way into the residence and grabbed him around the neck, trying to drag him outside the house.

Other people were present during the incident, he said. Epps was located by officers in the 2400 block of Iowa Street and was booked for battery. She was released on a notice to appear for a hearing.

Soon afterward, King heard noises outside and alleged the man was tearing wires out of the engine compartment of her 1975 Ford Maverick auto.

A suspect is being sought.

He appeared in the Granite City court Aug. 2 and was released on a $1,000 recognizance bond.

Protection order arrest

Tony M. Peterson, 23, of the 1500 block of Manley Avenue was arrested at 12:30 a.m. Aug. 1 and charged with violation of an order of protection and two counts of battery.

Peterson's arrest followed a disturbance at the residence of his estranged wife, Theresa Peterson, in the 2700 block of Myrtle Avenue, where officers arrived and heard screaming and sounds of fighting inside.

A young girl at the front door yelled for officers to hurry; they entered the home and found Peterson being restrained by three women.

Officers earlier went to the home of a relative of Theresa Peterson in the 3200 block of Aubrey Avenue, where the victim was visiting, after the suspect was seen driving a car nearby and also was observed near the residence.

Theresa Peterson said she left the Aubrey address and went home, finding Tony Peterson there. He allegedly declined to leave and police were called by a woman relative.

Prior to officers arriving, Peterson allegedly elbowed Betty Donaldson of the 3200 block of Aubrey Avenue in the ribs. He also allegedly bit the hand of Diana Meador of the 4100 block of North Street, Pontoon Beach, who said she retaliated.

Peterson also was served a Pontoon Beach warrant and a Madison County warrant, each alleging failure to appear on an allegation of battery.

Traffic deaths down in county after increase

By Dennis McMurray
Staff writer

SPRINGFIELD — After a sharp increase in traffic deaths the first five months of this year, Madison County fatalities were down in June, according to an Illinois Department of Transportation report.

There were two fatalities in June compared to six in May in Madison County. In June 1988, there were 11 traffic deaths.

Through the first six months of this year, there have been 32 reported traffic fatalities compared to 23 for the same period in 1988 in Madison County.

Battery statistics point to problem

Battering is the single greatest cause of injury to women in the United States. More women are injured by husbands or boyfriends than are hurt in car accidents, rapes or muggings.

The U.S. Surgeon General's office estimates that 15 million women each year will suffer abuse at the hands of their husbands or intimate partners.

Since domestic violence often goes unreported, the estimate is believed to be modest.

About half of incidents of domestic violence against women are reported to the police.

Labor Day parade participation urged

GRANITE CITY — The Tri-City Trades & Labor Council, AFL-CIO, will hold its eighth annual Labor Day parade on Monday, Sept. 4.

The council is inviting all workers and friends of labor to march or to ride on a float. Units will begin assembling on Edison Avenue between 18th Street and Niedringhaus Avenue at 8 a.m., and the parade will begin at 10 a.m.

The route will take it down Niedringhaus and then Madison Avenue to 29th Street, turning left there to Wilson Park, near Niedringhaus School, 29th and State streets.

There will be food and refreshments, music and other entertainment, voter registration booths and traditional tug-of-war competition between various union locals.

The theme this year is the contributions each organization makes to the community, said Roger Hoover, one of the parade's organizers.

Interested labor organizations may write or call Norma Gaines, 122 Thorngate Drive, Granite City 62040 (931-6608) and supply her with a contact name, address, the organization's name and a phone number.

Interested community organizations, clubs, elected officials or other groups should contact Roger Hoover, P.O. Box 1420, Granite City 62040 (345-4172).

Labor Day was instituted in 1882 by the Knights of Labor, an American labor organization. In 1887, Oregon became the first state to make it a legal holiday. All 50 states now designate the first Monday in September as Labor Day.

SEMC sees 4,200 at cholesterol screening

St. Clair Square in Fairview Heights was the site of a mid-summer cholesterol screening offered jointly by KSDK Channel 5 and St. Elizabeth Medical Center of Granite City.

"Almost 4,200 people were seen during the three-day screening, and it went well," said Bev Motil, RN, co-coordinator of the screening. "It was our first screening event of this size, so we had a few hitches to work out, but overall I think it was very successful. The average wait for the testing was below an hour."

"Our mission at St. Elizabeth is to care, not only for the acutely ill, but to provide services to prevent illness," said Sister Mary Thomas, SEMC chairman of the board.

"Cardiac problems are cited in the highest incidence of death for all age groups. We hope the screening will make people more aware, so they can use diet, exercise or whatever means are necessary to prevent later life-threatening cardiac problems."

The results from the screening were promising:

• 40 percent of the people tested had cholesterol levels in the "heart healthy" range of 200 and below.

• 35 percent had cholesterol levels that were in the borderline range of 201 to 239.

• 25 percent had high cholesterol levels, 240 and higher.

• 3 percent had extremely high levels, above 300.

Participants were counseled on the results of their test by registered nurses or registered dietitians. Those whose levels were in high ranges of 240 or more were advised to consult with their personal physicians. SEMC will be sending these individuals in the next month a reminder of the need to see a physician. Blood pressure tests were given, free of charge.

"I think this was a great opportunity for the medical center and the residents of the Metro East area," Motil said. "It was the first time Metro East had an opportunity to participate with KSDK in cholesterol screenings. I'm glad we could serve the people in the area and help them to become more knowledgeable about their health."

KSDK news personalities Rick Edmund, Connie Dieckman, Tom O'Neill and Bob Richards visited with cholesterol screening participants and signed autographs at St. Clair Square.

"Almost 60 percent of the people we saw at the screening should keep a watch on their cholesterol levels," Motil said. "With co-sponsored events like this, KSDK and area hospitals can combine to be an effective resource for health information."

Before the screening, KSDK interviewed Dr. Kevin Konzen of Granite City. Then, in addition to the coverage on the cholesterol screening, KSDK's Al Naipo was at the medical center interviewing one of the cardiologists, Dr. Thomas Martin, and one of the Cardiac Rehab patients, Rita Lombardi.

He also did some filming of the Cardiac Rehab program and the cholesterol screening offered at the Wellness Center here that day.

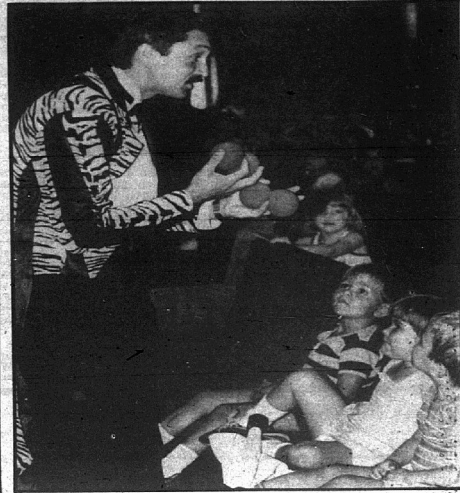

"I thank the many associates and volunteers who gave up their weekend to help. The screening would not have been a success without them. They were cooperative, professional and efficient," Motil said. "Rich Harris from Crestwood Medical Supply provided assistance with the testing machines."

St. Elizabeth Medical Center is continuing to offer cholesterol screenings to the community at convenient area locations during August.

SEMC will be offering a cholesterol screening at the Collinsville Schnucks Store, 501 Bellvue Road, Tuesday, Aug. 8, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The cost for the test is $5. No registration is needed.

There will be a screening from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 16, at the Wellness Center, 2103 Iowa St. in Granite City. Advance registration is required. Call 798-3935.

here. She and her daughters, Maxine Duniphan and Lucy Colbert, traveled to Springfield to visit another daughter, Ada Coburn, and family.

Phil and Shirley Merz of Edwardsville Road were feted with a 25th wedding anniversary party on July 23. The party was planned as a surprise gift from their sons, Rusty Schussler and Donny Merz. Then, Sunday morning, the boys had to confide in their father. The guests had been invited, the food ordered and everything set for Sunday afternoon, but the guests of honor had decided to go fishing for the day and eat out to celebrate. Following the disclosure Phil took his wife fishing while the party was being set up on the front lawn of the Merz home. Then Phil couldn't get Shirley to return home before eating without telling her about the party.

To her surprise they returned to find the lawn decorated, tables spread with a buffet and approximately 50 guests waiting.

OUT-OF-TOWN SPENDING IS ECONOMIC SUICIDE

It's a bold statement...and unfortunately very true. Dollars spent in your hometown are not only the lifeblood of local merchants but also the entire community.

Each dollar spent at home helps farmers, teachers, wage earners, everyone. As money rolls over locally it helps support public services, schools, churches and hundreds of other groups and organizations.

Recent surveys indicate that small town residents that leave their communities to shop in big-city malls are committing a form of economic suicide. This trend is so severe that the end of many small town business districts is very near.

The secret to changing the 'Use us or lose us' headline to 'Local economy prospers' is simple: Shop At Home.

•Protest

The New Covenant Fellowship church in New Orleans and a veteran of dozens of anti-abortion protests across the country, led a group of protesters into position at about 10:30 a.m. on the street entrances to the parking lot.

Shank told a group of reporters, "Illinois law says children from the moment of conception are human beings. We're here to uphold that law. The police can't uphold it because of Roe versus Wade," a reference to the landmark 1973 Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion.

"We're here to protect the lives of babies," Shank continued. "We believe this thing will ultimately be overturned."

•Police

"I am so happy this thing has fizzled so far," Haine said of the demonstration in which hundreds of protesters were expected at the Granite City clinic and at the Edwardsville courthouse.

"We did establish a line of communication for the today between the lawyer for the protesters and our office," Haine said.

Releasing the 35 demonstrators on Friday from the Madison County Jail probably was a key factor in reducing the number of protesters at both locations, plus well-organized planning by law

Shank, who wore an earset walkie-talkie, as did several other organizers, left his position and conferred briefly in the street with three other organizers.

At 8:10 a.m. he returned to the front of the group and said, "OK, brothers and sisters, let's take the door."

A group of 19 — 14 men and five women — then walked briskly across the parking lot and stood and sat in front of the entrance to clinic, where they began singing "Amazing Grace."

Granite City Police Lt. Roy Koberna then told the group: "You are in violation of Illinois law, Chapter 38. If you remain in enforcement agencies, authorities said.

Demonstrators had refused to give their names, identifying themselves only as "John Doe" and "Jane Doe." An organizer for the protest said they finally identified themselves because those who were jailed were the core organizers of an anti-abortion group in St. Louis.

The organizer, Tim Dreiste, executive director of Whole Life Ministries, said the protesters gave their names finally because "most of our organizers were in jail."

front of the door, you will be subject to arrest."

Susan Morton, director of the clinic, stood right behind the group of protesters. A male escort took up position and shielded her from the protesters.

Koberna repeated his words verbatim and added, "If you leave now, you will not be arrested."

The group, which had linked arms, prayed quietly for several minutes.

At 8:15, Shank was arrested, handcuffed, and led to a police car. His headset trailed on the ground.

One of the other protesters said, "Stand up for righteousness, for righteousness exalteth a nation."

As the others were arrested one by one, a group about 20 protesters in the alley sang, "Be bold, be strong, for the lord your god is with you. C'mon and walk in faith and victory."

Suddenly, a woman escort began shouting, "Where's a policeman? Can we have a policeman, please?"

On the parking across the alley, a man and a woman were in their car, which was being approached by protesters. Quickly a half-dozen escorts ran to surround the car.

The couple got out and walked quickly toward the clinic. The man, his face contorted in anger, wrapped his arm around the woman's shoulders and covered her face with his hand.

As they entered the alley, they were surrounded by protesters who shouted, "Change your mind! Don't let them talk you into it. And, 'It's never too late to change your mind.'"

They passed through a gate guarded by police. Once on the parking lot, they strode directly toward the remaining protesters blocking the clinic door, where the man said, "We're going in."

She said patients had been, three more cars containing patients entered the clinic's parking lot. Escorts rushed to meet them with sheets to shield them from probing cameras.

"You can cover your face now, but you can't cover it later," shouted a male protester on Iowa Street.

Susan Morton, director of Hope Clinic, wrung her hands.

"It's hard to stay calm when I see patients getting accosted," Morton said.

During the next 15 minutes, she said patients had been calling all morning asking what to do about the protesters. Some had come early before the protesters arrived. She said none of the patients had elected not to come and said many wanted to know what to do in the future to further the pro-choice cause.

"They're quite angry," Morton said of the patients. "They want to vent that action in a positive way."

Protesters spotted a black couple in a car. They began singing, "Red and yellow, black and white, they are precious in his sight. Jesus loves the unborn children of the world."

A little girl with a placard responded to the song, "Even the ones that get murdered."

Tim Dreiste, an organizer of the protest and the executive director of Whole Life Ministries of St. Louis, a group that tries to dissuade pregnant women from having abortions, said he has been involved in anti-abortion work since 1985 when he saw the movie "Silent Screen."

"It made me realize abortion was murder, and I had to do something about it," Dreiste said.

He said another protest was being conducted simultaneously in West St. Louis County at Reproductive Health Services. Mayor

Von Dee Cruise and City Attorney Mark Goldenberg watched the protest from the second floor of the St. Elizabeth Medical Center parking garage. "It's been real peaceful," Cruise said.

As Cruise watched, a pregnant newspaper reporter fainted. A protester fanned her with a placard.

A few protesters lingered at 11:15 a.m. All 22 arrested had been shipped to Madison County Jail, where two judges were on standby to arraign them and set bail. Bail was expected to be set $52.

Protest organizers had provided authorities in advance that those arrested would supply their real names this time. On last Saturday and Tuesday, most of the 70 who were arrested had given their names as "Jane Doe" or "John Doe." The last 35 were released Friday.

In return, authorities promised to charge those arrested with simple trespassing and not mob action, a more serious offense.

Earlier prisoners freed

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Bill Haine was busy early Friday morning.

He was about to supervise the release of nearly 40 anti-abortion demonstrators from the Madison County Jail in Edwardsville. Most had been there for seven days.

The Madison County state's attorney also was planning for the following day when hundreds of protesters were expected to gather once again outside the Hope Clinic for Women in Granite City.

"Being in the county jail is no picnic and I think they realize that. They've agreed to go home and stay there," Haine said, meaning that the protesters were not to return to the clinic on Saturday.

Mob action charges filed against demonstrators arrested July 29 and Aug. 1 at the Hope Clinic had been dropped, paving the way for their release.

"We have made an arrangement by which those still in jail will enter an agreement allowing a conviction on charges of criminal trespass to property and/or obstructing a peace officer. They will be released with serving seven days of a 14-day sentence in the county jail," he said.

"They also have agreed to go home and pay their fines," Haine said.

"We have made an arrangement with those already released to forfeit their bond money," he said. "Protesters freed on bond have posted bail amounts varying from $102 to $306, depending on the number of charges filed."

"This action may not satisfy the hard-core pro-life members or the hard-core pro-choice supporters," Haine said.

The situation was still confused Friday and the exact number of protesters charged with a specific misdemeanor was still unavailable. Until the agreement was reached, those housed at the jail had refused to provide names and addresses.

Haine and his staff believe there may have been some technical problem connected with the use of the mob action charge in the July 29 arrests, Haine said. On Friday, he declined to state the technical problem, and on Saturday did not want to use the mob action charge.

"As a law enforcement officer I am not diverting from my oath of office nor the oath of office of the police officers to uphold the law," Haine said.

He said the protesters and those with jail time will have a conviction on their record, he said.

"This does not let them willfully disobey the law. They have to realize they could be in violation of the law," Haine said.

The conduct of the demonstrators, especially toward law officers, was watched closely Saturday, he said, particularly for any protesters "hussling" law officers or bystanders.

A charge of battery against a demonstrator who allegedly struck or assaulted an employee of the clinic July 29 will not be dropped, Haine said.

"The strain of picking up limp bodies weighing between 150 and 200 pounds — in this excessive heat is very hard for the officers," Haine said.

With release of the 70 demonstrators arrested at Hope Clinic on July 29 and Aug. 1, the Madison County state's attorney also was clearing the way for the many arrests that were expected Saturday morning.

Haine and his staff were planning to be at the clinic yesterday. Staff members were drafting a mob action charge that could be filed, he said.

"We will have the option if demonstrators get out of hand and make life difficult for police."

Haine had said Wednesday he would not authorize the release of protesters already jailed unless they fulfilled the requirements of the law, which meant giving names and addresses.

Terri Abernathy named Alestle manager at SIUE

The appointment of Terri J. Abernathy as manager of the Alestle, the student newspaper at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, was announced by Dean of Students Constance Rockingham. The appointment has been approved by President Earl Lazerus.

Abernathy, who recently completed a year as editor in chief of the Alestle, is the first person to assume the responsibilities of manager, a newly-created position designed to provide teaching, training and mentoring for students engaged in production of the student newspaper.

Rockingham said the manager's duties will include teaching production methods; providing instruction and guidance to the student staff in matters of libel, obscenity, privacy and journalistic ethics; encouraging students to be accurate, fair, complete and objective in the reporting of news; serving as fiscal officer of the Alestle; preparing operating budgets; training, hiring and terminating clerical, production and advertising staff; and developing long-range plans for systematic growth of the newspaper.

Abernathy, who is completing her master's degree in mass communications at SIUE, received her baccalaureate degree in mass communications from the university in June 1988. A Presidential Scholar, she served a year as student body president and was a recipient of a competitive graduate award. She is a member of Phi Kappa

McDonnell Douglas recruiters visit city

Three representatives from McDonnell Douglas Corp. in Long Beach, Calif., traveled more than 2,000 miles to recruit aviation maintenance technology students at the Granite City Campus of Belleville Area College.

"The candidates here at BAC are just what we're looking for," said Candace Thornton, senior employment representative with McDonnell Douglas. "They all have very positive attitudes and are willing to work."

Thornton plans recruiting trips based on a list of schools with Federal Aviation Administration-approved aviation maintenance technology programs. All of the 30 students interviewed offered jobs, according to Thornton. Students who choose to accept a job in California will earn $9.39 an hour to start and receive a 10-cent raise every two weeks.

They will also receive full-time benefits and $1,000 for travel and moving expenses.

Julie Jones, an 18-year-old aviation maintenance technology student from Collinsville, is planning to accept McDonnell Douglas' offer and move to Long Beach.

"We are fortunate that they came all this way from California to interview us," she said. "I feel like I was in the right place at the right time."

Dr. Paul Greenwood, coordinator of the aviation maintenance technology program, said most of the students who accept a job with McDonnell Douglas will move on to a job with a commercial airline in less than a year.

"A student working for a commercial airline would probably start out at $15 to $17 an hour. With overtime pay added to that, it would be approximately $45,000 a year," he said.

The three McDonnell Douglas employees were Ray Fleeman, a manufacturing management representative; Darryl Stokes, an aircraft assembly mechanic, Grade I; and Candace Thornton, a senior employment representative. They are traveling across the nation looking for qualified aircraft assembly mechanics.

Students may earn a one-year certificate or a two-year associate of applied science degree from BAC's aviation maintenance technology program. For more information on the program, the numbers are 901-0600 or toll-free in Illinois at 1-800-BAC-5131, extension 441 or 442.

Hogan, Wargo, Sirtak lead Miners past Traders

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

EDWARDSVILLE — The ingredients for a good offensive baseball team vary from club to club.

But one thing usually holds true. The good teams have one guy — and often two — at the top of the order who get on base a lot, create havoc on the basepaths and then ride home on the big RBI bats in the middle of the order.

The Miners followed that formula nicely Thursday in a 15-9 victory over Edwardsville at Hoppe Park. Tim Hogan and Tim Wargo, the smallest bookends at the top of the order, were on base seven times and scored seven runs. The 3-4-5 hitters — Tom Greco, Daren DePew and Bob Sirtak — combined for eight RBIs, with Sirtak going 4 for 5 with five RBIs against his hometown team.

Hogan and Wargo are like Lenny Dykstra and Wally Backman were for the Mets in 1986. Hogan has had a fairly consistent year, but Wargo had had troubles getting his average up. When they're both going on the same night, the Miners' offense is tough to stop.

Hogan had a triple, walked, was hit by a pitch, stole a base and scored three runs. Wargo singled, tripled, walked twice, stole two bases and drove in two runs.

"I've got to be Dykstra," Hogan said of the New York comparison. "I play center field and I'm working on his (batting) stance. I just need that stuff drizzling out of my mouth like he has."

Wargo agreed with the comparison, but preferred another Met.

"Can't I be (Gregg) Jefferies?" he said. "Hey, when we get on base, it makes a big difference. Especially with someone like Greco behind us."

Greco had an RBI triple in the first, as did Wargo. But it was Sirtak who cleaned up the most as Greco was walked three times. He had a two-run single in the third as the Miners took a 4-0 lead. His ground rule RBI double keyed a four-run fifth as Granite City broke a 4-4 tie. Sirtak also had an RBI single in a six-run eighth against losing pitcher Scott Harper and an RBI double in the ninth.

The Miners came out smelling like a rose even when they weren't sure what play was on. Hogan tripled off Harper, who relieved starter Dan Meyer in the sixth, to start the eighth and Wargo singled through a drawn-in infield as Granite City took the 9-8 lead. Greco walked to bring DePew to the plate.

On a 1-0 pitch, DePew doubled to left to score both runners and break the game open. But Wargo and Greco weren't expecting DePew to swing away.

"I thought the bunt was on," Greco said in the dugout. "Doug (Rains, coaching at third) gave the bunt sign. I guess he's just giving his arms some exercise. What does he know? He's getting married Saturday."

The one dark moment came when starting pitcher Rich Miner left in the fifth with a muscle injury to his pitching elbow. Mark Bowen (2-2 in the Night League, 5-4 overall) relieved and pitched 4½ innings to gain the win. He allowed four hits and one run after Edwardsville had scored four runs in the fourth and four more in the fifth off Miner to tie the game twice.

Steve Blumner hit a three-run homer in the fifth for the Traders, who had 12 hits but lost to the Miners for the sixth time in seven meetings. Granite City wrapped up the Metro East Night League season with a 9-5 mark (20-18 overall), which should get them a playoff spot. Makeup games will be played next week, but the Miners could finish as high as third (the top four teams qualify). Edwardsville is 7-5 in the Night League and has two games next week.

BAC's Harrington moves up with big boys

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

Jay Harrington will have some stories to tell next week.

Harrington, who will be starting his 11th year as head basketball coach at Belleville Area College, is holding a basketball camp at the GCC campus Aug. 14-18. Registration is still open for the camp, which is for boys in grades 5-8 and will be held from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. each day. The cost of the camp is $45 per participant or $40 each for groups of five or more.

Harrington was an assistant coach for the North squad which won the gold medal at the U.S. Olympic festival in Oklahoma City recently. Michigan State's Jud Heathcote was the head coach of a team which included college stars like Oklahoma State's Byron Houston and Corey Williams, Missouri's Anthony Peeler and Michigan State's Matt Steigenga.

"I had a tremendous time," said Harrington. "I got selected on the basis of our team (BAC) going to the national tournament a couple years ago. I was one of only two junior college coaches there, so it was quite an honor."

"And an experience like that can be a good stepping stone. My name is now in the pool for the Pan-Am Games, the World University Games and things like that. And that is something I would definitely like the chance to do."

Harrington, a native of Kentucky, played four years in Europe before beginning his coaching career.

"That was something that was probably a big factor in getting the job at the Olympic festival," Harrington said. "They like to get people who have had some exposure to the international game."

Brochures for the GCC camp are available at the Granite City and Belleville campuses. For information or to register, call the BAC athletic office at 235-2700, extension 271, or toll-free at 1-800-BAC-5131, extension 271.

NOTES: Harrington has signed three Venice High School graduates. Vincent Harris, Daryl Jackson and Hosen King all will play for the Dutchmen this season.

Harris, a 6-0 guard, is a 1987 graduate of Venice High School and was a starting guard for Venice's state championship team that year. He played briefly at Parkland Junior College in Campaign before sitting out last year.

Jackson and King are 1989 graduates of Venice. Jackson was a sophomore starter on the 1987 state champs and is a 6-4 swingman who will play mostly guard for BAC. King is 6-6 and will be a forward.

"I think all three of them will make an immediate impression," Harrington said. "Having Daryl play guard will really help him refine those skills since he won't have to worry as much about rebounding. Jackson and King could start for us, but starting is not a word we use much. We talk about quality time, and all of them should get plenty of that."

Greenville clips Belleville for junior title

By Mike Kelly
Correspondent

GRANITE CITY — Greenville won the District 22 Junior League championship by nipping Belleville 2-1 Thursday at Varsity Field.

Greenville wrapped up the season with an 18-6 record. Belleville, which posted the best league record (15-2) during the regular season, finished with a 25-6 overall mark.

Greenville scored the game's decisive run in the fourth inning, snapping a 1-1 tie. David Oestrich led off with an infield single. He moved to second on a wild pitch and advanced to third on Ben Johnson's single.

Oestrich came home with the go-ahead run on Tim Stoecklin's sacrifice fly to center field. That proved to be decisive as winning pitcher Doug Duncan slammed the door on Belleville the rest of the way.

Duncan (4-0) retired the last 13 in a row to nail down the title. The last hit he allowed was an RBI double to Mark Schrand in the third inning, which at the time tied the game. Duncan scattered three hits, struck out four and didn't allow a walk. He also produced 12 ground ball outs.

"Doug was on tonight," said Greenville coach Keith Aten. "He kept a good-hitting Belleville team off balance by mixing up his pitches. His combination of the curve ball, fastball and knuckle ball produced a solid performance."

Greenville scored an unearned run in the first. A pair of errors, a fielder's choice and an RBI double by Nate Metzger scored that run.

Wood River (19-9) took home third place by blasting Alton (11-11) 12-2 in six innings on Wednesday. Wood River, which pounded out 12 hits, broke the contest open by scoring four runs apiece in the fifth and sixth innings to win the game by the ten-run rule. Matt Berry paced Wood River with a pair of hits, three RBIs and three runs scored.

Ingersoll: Sun to have one editorial per day

By Craig A. Martin
Staff writer

Ralph Ingersoll II, owner of the Suburban Journal of Granite City, St. Louis and the St. Louis Sun, has shed more light on the editorial policies of the Sun, which will begin daily publication in September.

Ingersoll has said in the past he hopes the Sun will not be stereotyped as Democratic or Republican, or liberal or conservative, a position he still affirms. But he did acknowledge in late July that the paper's editorial emphasis will be extremely local.

"There will be one editorial per day in the Sun, and it will be on a local issue or on how a national issue affects us locally," Ingersoll said. "I really don't care to see the Afghanistan rebels on the editorial pages of the Sun. People want to know what we think about issues that affect them directly."

Ingersoll said the editorial staff will be very accessible to the public when people have questions or problems.

"There won't be any buck-passing," Ingersoll said. "Thomas Tallarico (the Sun's publisher) and I will be responsible for what goes in the paper."

Ingersoll said he intends to move to St. Louis from Trenton, N.J., at least on a temporary basis to become the editor-in-chief of the Sun.

"I took the editorship of the Sun because I felt that I had a better grasp of what would work in this market than anyone I could hire."

Ingersoll made the comments as guest speaker at a breakfast meeting of the St. Louis County at the University Club in Brentwood. The St. Louis County is civic and business leaders in St. Louis County whose goal is to promote growth of business and industry in the county.

Ingersoll also re-affirmed his commitment to be the "sports paper of record in St. Louis."

"There are five pages of useful agate in our sports prototype, enough for even the most serious sports junkie," Ingersoll said.

Late press times for the sports section also will mean better and more up-to-date statistics and scores from late sports events on the West Coast, Ingersoll said.

The Sun's emphasis on sports coverage would mean that an important sports story would start on the paper's front page 30 or 40 times per year, he said.

Ingersoll will hold a press conference Aug. 10 to announce a launch date for the Sun, the sports editor, and the home subscription rates and information.

Home delivery will be available in St. Louis city and county, St. Charles County, northern Jefferson County, and in Madison and St. Clair counties in Illinois.

Curb on TV violence passes Senate, House

By Jason Moody
Staff writer

WASHINGTON — Sen. Paul Simon's four-year effort to reduce television violence — by allowing networks to negotiate industrywide standards — cleared a major hurdle Aug. 1 as the U.S. House voted in favor of the legislation.

The bill, which passed unanimously in the Senate last May, would waive current anti-trust laws for three years so industry executives could meet and develop voluntary guidelines on TV violence in non-news broadcasts and cable programs.

Simon, who first launched his effort in 1985, said the legislation was needed because of "overwhelming research evidence in dozens upon dozens of studies" linking excessive television violence to aggressive behavior in children.

"It's time for the television industry to forge a partnership with America's families to scale back the atmosphere of violence that is erupting in our communities, on our Main Streets, even in our schoolyards," Simon said.

Simon's bill has passed the Senate three times but never made it out of the House until Tuesday's 399 to 18 vote. It now must be approved by a House/Senate conference and the president before it becomes law.

The American Civil Liberties Union and House members from both parties have opposed the bill, claiming it could set the stage for further "censorships."

"If an anti-trust exemption to deal with violence is enacted this year, what will stop Congress from signaling its interest in shaping the treatment of abortion or foreign policy through another exemption next year?" asked Henry Hyde, legislative counsel for the ACLU.

During House debate Monday, several lawmakers also expressed concern the bill would limit the effectiveness of programs on such topics as the Klu Klux Klan or the Holocaust.

"What about violence in China?" asked Don Edwards, D-Calif. "Could this be out of bounds as a result of the legislation?"

Simon has countered that the legislation relies solely on self-imposed industry standards and contains no guidelines or regulations.

The legislation "will allow the television industry to use its considerable joint administrative and creative resources to act on this problem without fear of either anti-trust liability or government censorship," Simon said at a recent hearing on the issue.

The bill passed by the Senate last May also would waive anti-trust laws to permit network executives to meet and discuss industry standards on explicit sex and the glamorous portrayal of drug use.

Simon said that under current law it is difficult for one member of the TV industry to impose internal standards on violence when the other can gain a commercial advantage by going in the opposite direction.

"The plain fact is that violence sells," the Illinois Democrat said. "Programmers, producers and advertisers have discovered the axiom that violence is nearly a surefire ratings booster."

Edgar plans announcement

SPRINGFIELD — Secretary of State Jim Edgar has scheduled an eight-city fly-around Aug. 8 to announce his political plans for 1990, when Illinois will elect a new governor.

Edgar will begin with a rally in Charleston, where he was raised and later served as student body president at Eastern Illinois University.

He then will address supporters in six other Downstate cities before concluding the day with a rally in suburban Cook County.

Edgar, a Republican, already has won two statewide elections, leading the Republican ticket in 1982 and capturing reelection in 1986 by the largest plurality of any statewide candidate in Illinois history.

His announcement schedule includes, at 10:30 a.m., a rally in the Main Terminal of the St. Louis Regional Airport, Bethesda, Md.

Also visited will be Marion, Springfield, Peoria, Rockford, Moline and Rosemont.

Dixon sees only limited options on hostages

By Edward T. Hearn
Staff writer

WASHINGTON — U.S. Sen. Jim Dixon said Monday that the United States has a narrow range of options to weigh in response to the reported execution of kidnapped Marine Lt. Col. William Higgins.

"Our options are few and limited, beyond question," the Belmont, N.J., Democrat said. "It's all the more reason to support a continued effort to have a strong intelligence apparatus at our disposal in this country."

Higgins, abducted in February 1988 while heading a United Nations peacekeeping team in Lebanon, was apparently put to death by the pro-Iran extremist group Organization of the Oppressed on Earth.

The group released a videotape that showed Higgins hanging from a rope, but U.S. officials have doubts about the tape and were unable to confirm if Higgins was involved.

The group said it killed Higgins because Israel swooped into southern Lebanon last Friday and abducted Sheikh Abdel Karim Obeid, an Islamic cleric with ties to Iran.

Pres. George Bush was joined by dozens of U.S. officials in voicing outrage at unverified reports of the Higgins execution.

"It is my hope that the reports are not true, but if they are, this is one of the most reprehensible and outrageous terrorist murders in memory," said House Minority Leader Robert H. Michel of Peoria.

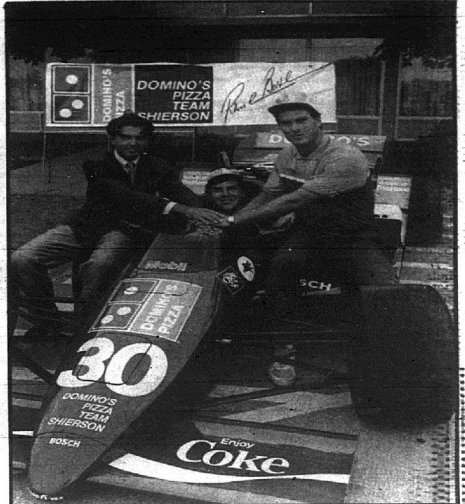

Senate Republican Leader Robert Dole questioned Israel's decision to seize Obeid. "Perhaps a little more responsibility on the part of the Israelis one of these days would be refreshing," Dole said.

U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill.,

said in a statement that criticizing Israel wasn't a solution. "I don't think we should look for scapegoats in Israel," Simon said. "We need to think about what we can do to respond immediately on the part of the United States."

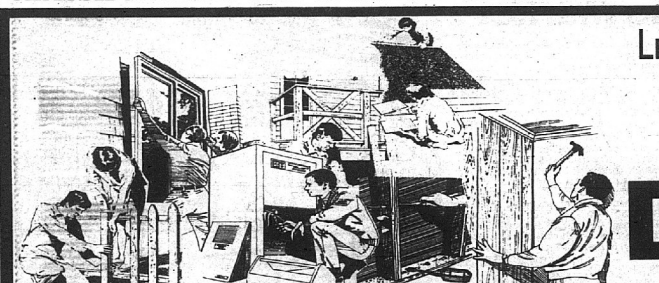

Dixon said he favored measured steps by the Bush Administration, which held a National Security Council meeting late Monday to discuss potential U.S. responses to the Higgins events.

"We have to evaluate exactly what we can do. You don't go to war with Iran over this," Dixon said.

Courting of Timothy Dalton: Actor wary of taking on 007

By Harry Hamm
Staff writer

It took three tries by producer Albert R. "Cubby" Broccoli before English actor Timothy Dalton agreed to play 007 in what was then the newest James Bond — "The Living Daylights."

That 1987 film was the 15th in the ever-so-successful series. The latest, again featuring Dalton, is "Licence To Kill."

Broccoli recalls two problems to be overcome when creating "The Living Daylights."

First, he could not convince Roger Moore to continue in the role. Broccoli recounts that Moore wanted to become a real "act-for" (Broccoli is phrasing). Moore said he was tired of waiting through film after film as Bond, a role he felt was becoming less and less a challenge. Broccoli says the role made Moore rich but unhappy.

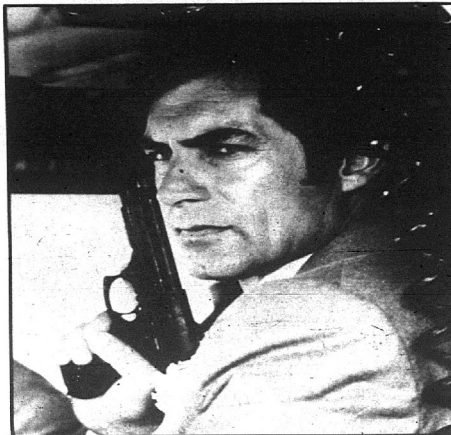

Second, although Dalton was the perfect blend of traits needed to give proper attention to the new Bond, (well-chiseled good looks, a worldly demeanor and a sense of fashion straight from a cover of QJ), he was wary of risking an international failure, an eminent possibility for a portrayal of such worldwide visibility.

Twice, the classically trained English stage and film star turned down Broccoli's offer.

"I was impressed with all their efforts," Dalton says. "I'm not sure I ever really had the confidence in me they did, but, happily, they were right."

Dalton, a 6-foot-2, 45-year-old bachelor, is the perfect physical specimen for the role of Bond. (One of Dalton's love interests for some years now has been actress Vanessa Redgrave, they met while doing the motion picture "Mary, Queen of Scots" in 1971.) Since his first big film role as King Philip of France in "The Lion in Winter" in 1968, Dalton has shown an ability to hold his own with almost any acting opportunity.

"I had always wanted to be a great actor," Dalton says, and I still do. I don't think I'm there yet, really. Working in the company of the people, especially Peter O'Toole, has been an extraordinary encouragement.

"But I'm not an actor who feels great acting demands becoming the person you're playing, whatever that is supposed to mean. I'm that person while I'm working, never at any other time. Would that I could understand those who feel that's the way to do it. But who in their right mind would want to go around for months thinking they're really James Bond?"

This newest Bond adventure, "Licence To Kill," is the most personal on Bond of the 16 films in the series, Dalton says.

"Bond actually gets his license to kill revoked in this film," he says. "He goes against the specific instructions of his superiors while trying to revenge the maiming and torture by a mercer-less drug baron of Felix Leiter, his colleague and friend from several of the stories. Leiter's wife is even murdered, so Bond is in no mood for restrictions in his quest for revenge."

"Licence To Kill" is one of the most ambitious of the Bond films when it comes to pyrotechnics and stunt work, two important elements for Dalton who insists on doing his own stunts whenever possible.

"Along with that element of 'pretending' I mentioned," Dalton says, "is the ability to take a safe stunt and make it look dangerous. There are many experts of all kinds behind the scenes in a film like this and they all know their business. Mind you, they are not invincible and I have to keep that in mind."

'Shag' actors stifled by bad script

There are several attractive, competent young actors in "Shag" (R) — Phoebe Cates, Scott Coffey, Bridget Fonda, Annabeth Gish, Page Hannah, and even Tyrone Power, Jr. But screenwriters Robin Swicord, Lanier Laney and Terry Sweney have thrown up too many hurdles for them to jump in a monotonous scenario that amounts to little more than mechanical, teen-agers-on-a-toot horsplay.

There's nothing really obnoxious about "Shag," but the off-repeated rites-of-passage theme (the title derives from the popular 1960s dance) has been handled with more humor and dash in previous films.

Once again it is the sweet, uncomplicated summer of 1963, a year that has provided an apparently inexhaustible residue of material for nostalgic authors and screenwriters who view the era the same way kids from the late 1940s looked upon the "Roaring '20s," the era of the Charleston, bathtub gin and flappers and baby vamps who stayed up all night "keeping cool with Coolidge."

The femmes roaring through Myrtle Beach in a red Cadillac convertible for a final weekend fling are Fonda, Hannah, Cates and Gish.

Anxieties involving big decisions in the lives of four close friends need to be dealt with.

Does going off to college really make more sense than getting a glamorous job, or getting married, or just going to bed with the cute guys they meet like Jeff Yagher, Coffey and others.

Everybody in Myrtle Beach seems to be dancing the "Shag" in more or less decorous fashion, gearing up for an important contest. But prior to the main event the girls wind up at a luxurious beach house owned by Hannah's father, a rich state senator.

Straight-laced and wise beyond her years, Hannah has the face of a worried hamster as she looks up her daddy's good bourbon and delivers a long list of rules for behavior which no one pays the slightest attention to.

Before long the joint is jumpin' and the havoc unleashed in the senator's elegant beach house by 100 or so drunken revelers is the same predictable silliness that has gone before.

When the party's over, ossified teen-agers are draped over the furniture and recline like corpses on the lawn to greet the dawn and a startled maid who arrives to open the house for the arriving senator and his wife.

There are enjoyable moments in "Shag," but nothing that happens is so profound or original that delicious cheers rise from the audience.

Just an occasional chuckle. "Shag" is rated PG. Running time: 1:37. Critic's rating based on four stars.

KMOX still dominates St. Louis radio market

By Ian MacBryde
Staff writer

"We work very hard. We accentuate the positive. That's the way to get things done," says Robert Hyland, general manager of KMOX Radio (1140 AM).

There is a great deal of positive to accentuate at KMOX, owned and operated by CBS Inc., by almost any measure, one of the most successful radio stations in the country, consistently at or near the top for largest audience share in a Top 50 market, according to Arbitron ratings.

The most recent ratings (April, May, June) only reinforce the station's dominance in this market.

(1) KMOX, 21.2 share of the audience, up 1.5 from the last quarterly measurement; (2) KSHB (95 FM), 9.7, up from 8.3; (3) KEZK (102 FM), 8.8, up from 7.7; (4) KIQB (106 FM), 6.1, down from 6.4; (5) WIL (92 FM), 5.7, up from 4.9; (6) KMKJ (108 FM), 5.7, was 5.5; (7) KLOU (108 FM), 5.2, was 7.0; (8) KSD (93.7 FM), 5.1, was 4.7; (9) KVKY (98.7 FM), 4.7, was 5.0; and (10) KJLJ (96 FM), 2.4, was 3.0.

The KMOX increase is almost expected as baseball fans tune in KLOU, also a CBS property, took a beating. You may recall that KLOU went to an oldies format last November and was rewarded with health ratings increases. But the most recent numbers dropped KLOU into 7th in the market, its 5.2 share down from 7.0. One source speculated that the novelty of the oldies had worn off. But it certainly hasn't worn off for KSHB, which uses a "classic rock of the '50s, '60s, '70s" format — and got a 17 percent increase.

Hyland, also a senior vice president for CBS, says his station is four stations in one, providing news, sports, entertainment and information.

And, particularly in sports, he notes, the station provides alternatives, "outside columnists." He mentions Ken Horriggan, recently of the Post-Dispatch and now of the St. Louis Sun-Horriggan, by the way, is widely noted for his somewhat irreverent treatment of St. Louis sports idols and other institutions.

It seems that KMOX sports staffers, on the other hand, rarely if ever rock the boat. Examples abound, but only in the ears of the beholder. One recent instance: Ron Jacobson on a Sunday morning call-in show apparently did all he could to avoid understanding the meaning of a listener who was suggesting that maybe the Baseball Cardinals aren't as committed as a team as he (the listener) would have liked. Nevertheless, says Hyland, "We don't go all company."

Hyland editorializes daily. "We were the first CBS station to do it." The first one was delivered June 23, 1958, and it was on fluoridation. It was in favor of the process, by the way, which might come as a bit of a shock to those who see Hyland as immovably conservative.

"Conservative on more issues than not," he admits.

Bits and pieces

Network efforts on the crash of United Flight 232: Late night specials last Wednesday seemed to say a lot about current content in coverage.

In its 10:30 p.m. wrap, NBC-TV (KSDK, Channel 5) seemed far more on top of the story than CBS-TV (KMOX, Channel 4), having more information and more prepared to explain it.

CBS, on the other hand, had Charles Kuralt, who offered a poignant story of one survivor who was able to help some children escape from the wreckage as it came to rest in a cornfield. NBC and ABC-TV (KTVI, Channel 2) has the same information, but they couldn't tell the story the way Kuralt did.
